A bi-national conference at the University of Texas:

Political Parties and Voters in Mexico’s 2006 Elections

Friday, February 3, 2006             Santa Rita Room, Texas Union 3.502

PAN  PRD  PRI

Welcome by Victoria Rodríguez
Vice Provost and Dean of Graduate Studies

9:00 A.M.–12:00 NOON
The View from Below: What Voters Want
Mexican and U.S. experts discuss new research

Featuring:
Jorge Domínguez, Harvard University
Chappell Lawson, MIT
Kenneth Greene, UT Austin
Alejandro Moreno, Reforma and ITAM, Mexico
Roderic Ai Camp, Claremont-McKenna College

Kathleen Bruhn, University of California, Santa Barbara
Alejandro Poiré, Harvard University
Beatriz Magaloni, Stanford University
James McCann, Purdue University
Andy Baker, Northeastern University

2:00–5:00 P.M.
The View from the Parties: Platforms and Strategies
Representatives of the PAN, PRD, and PRI discuss their campaigns

Presentations will be in Spanish
Live webcast at: <http://realaudio.cc.utexas.edu:8080/ramgen/redundant/channel1.rm> available at the time of the panel

Sponsors:
Teresa Lozano Long Institute of Latin American Studies, Mexican Center of LLILAS
Mexican Students Association and Center for Mexican American Studies
College of Liberal Arts, Office of the Dean of Graduate Studies
University of Texas at Austin